

E-Resilience Conference

A transdisciplinary approach to building e-resilience:
managing technology

Thursday 21st April 2016, 10am - 4pm

Birkbeck, University of London

Free to attend

Join Coventry University and the Switched On Culture Research Group (SOCRG), for a vibrant day exploring this important area of research.

You will hear from high profile researchers, practitioners and industry experts about the emerging concept of e-resilience and its application and wide-ranging implications for well-being and performance. There will be a mix of keynote speakers and bite-size sessions which will increase your understanding of the challenges and opportunities in this fast moving and very exciting field!

To develop evidence based strategies to help individuals and organisations to manage technology in a healthy and sustainable way

Keynote Speaker:

David D'Souza, Head of London CIPD

The event will appeal to Occupational Psychologists, HR professional academics, practitioners and technologists and to those interested in the impact of technology.

For more information about the event or how to register, please visit our website:

www.coventry.ac.uk/eresilienceconference2016